At Cleveland Police, we believe in Putting People First, because it's our people that make the difference

SEAN PRICE
CHIEF CONSTABLE

At Cleveland Police, we believe in Putting People First. We pride ourselves on putting people at the heart of the service that we deliver to all our communities. Every neighbourhood in Cleveland now has a named officer and PCSO, and an important part of Putting People First is listening to our communities and working with our partner agencies to solve problems. Our Neighbourhood Policing Teams, who are dedicated, accountable and accessible in their areas, play a key part in this work, providing a reassuring presence on the streets of Cleveland.

They regularly attend community meetings to identify local policing priorities which they are then able to address. We also encourage local residents to attend to ensure that their voices are heard and they have a say in how the service is delivered to their community. We aim to be at the forefront of modern policing by investing in and supporting our staff, and giving them the skills, equipment and work life balance they need to deliver a professional service.

Part of the work of Cleveland Police is also to support our staff by reducing bureaucracy in line with the Review of Policing and the Green Paper. We are in the process of rolling out handheld mobile data devices to all frontline officers, which means they will be able to access Force systems and information while out on the street.

Cleveland Police is here to serve and protect the community. But we can't do it without your help, and without the help of our partners.
